Miss Catherine B. Davis Addresses Club Members on Penal Institutions.

EMMA TURNER PRESIDES

Miss M. C. B. Munford Talks on Effort to Establish Coeducation at Virginia University.

Miss Catherine B. Davis, chairman of the Parole Commission of New York State, and superintendent of the Bedford Reformatory for Girls, was principal speaker at a banquet last night at the Raleigh under auspices of the College Women's Clubs. "Social Democracy and Its Relation to the Penal Institutions in New York State" was the theme of Miss Davis' address. She stated that her experience with the criminal classes proved that violations of law were caused more through the failure of the violators to respect the wishes of others, and that when the criminal classes were taught to know that the laws were made for self-protection, and that the laws were not made to bring about oppression, then would there be less use for institutions of this character.

Miss M. C. B. Munford, of Richmond, spoke on "The Effort to Establish a Co-ordinate College for Women at the University of Virginia." The speakers were introduced by Miss Emma Harper Turner. Miss Elsa Lehman, accompanied by W. J. Weber, sang, "Singing the members was under direction of Elphosa Youngs.

John E. Roosevelt Testifies in Court that Robert Is a "Weak Character." Lacking Will.

New York, March 11.—John Ellis Roosevelt, cousin of the former President, again went copiously on the witness stand today as he told of his marital troubles. Mr. Roosevelt, who is 45 years old, is seeking an annulment of his marriage to Edith Hammersley Roosevelt, on the ground that the marriage was never consummated.

Justice Crane, in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn, after hearing the testimony, adjourned the case until next Saturday, when it is expected a decision will be rendered.

Mr. Roosevelt took the stand. He was asked if he had told his brother, Robert, upon his return from his wedding trip, that he was perfectly happy and contented. This statement was made on the stand by Robert Roosevelt, in the wife's behalf.

"That statement is willfully false," said Mr. Roosevelt. "My brother is married to a sister of my wife. Like my wife, my sister-in-law is strong-willed. In fact, she is so strong-willed that she dominates my brother and compels him to do everything she wishes."

50,000 Club Members Now on Final Lap of Race for Prizes

Spirited Contest for $300 Cash Prizes Brings Many Changes in Standings of Candidates for Auto and Other of Herald's Offers.

Saturday was a gala day for the "50,000 Club," for it marked the spirited finish of the two weeks' campaign for the extra cash prizes totaling $300. As a result of the aggressive work of the candidates, the published voting list no doubt will show many noticeable changes. As the clerical force in the office of the "50,000 Club" was kept busy until midnight Saturday night, it was impossible to prepare any standing for today's issue of The Herald. However, all votes will be made out Monday, and the list of candidates will be published again on Tuesday.

Now that the race for the extra prizes is a thing of the past, all hands should turn their attention to the main goal ahead—several thousands of dollars in prizes and cash. The attractive array of

FEDERAL ARMOR PLATE FACTORIES ARE URGED

Law and Legislation Committee of Chamber of Commerce Indorses Plan—New Court Bill Argued.

The establishment of government armor-plate factories was urged in a resolution adopted by the law and legislation committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in the rooms of the chamber last night. The action of the committee will be laid before the full chamber for action Tuesday night.

The committee discussed at length the bill pending in the House for a reorganization of the District Juvenile Court, and decided to take no action until the next meeting, when Judge J. Wilmer Lattimer, acting as a familiar with the situation will be invited to attend. The committee characterized as unreasonable the provision in the House bill which would place a fine of $200 or imprisonment for six months on persons found in poverty straits in the juvenile court. It was pointed out that few persons able to pay a $200 fine ever come in contact with the juvenile court.

A resolution was adopted urging the Commissioners to abolish the District poverty courts in the block bordered by Sixth, Seventh, I and K streets north-east. The property is owned by the United States. Residents of the north-east claim the yards are a nuisance.

VILLA BANDITS FLEE TO HILLS

Making for Guerrero District of Chihuahua, to Take Stand Against U. S.

ALL BORDER IS ARMED

Passengers on Trains Carry Guns. Troops Ready to March—Carrazistas Are Gathering.

By WALLACE SMITH.

El Paso, Tex., March 11.—Francisco Villa and his outlaw band are fleeing to the hills of the Guerrero district in Chihuahua, taking their hand against the American troops commissioned to wipe them out.

In the Guerrero hills, where Villa lived before his ambition turned him murderer, the bandit horde is on familiar trails. In the hills, too, they will find a natural military defense that will be a problem for the soldiers of the United States.

Many tales came across the border to-night from dark Mexico. One of them said Villa was encamped within twenty-five miles of the border. The latest information, probably authentic, came from Gen. Gabriel Gavira, the Carranza commandant at Juarez.

Gavira's informants brought word that Villa was seen at Corralito, thirty miles north of Casas Grandes, headed for the hills in western Chihuahua. Gen. Gavira stated that at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, Gen. Luis Gutierrez, Chihuahua commandant, would be sent on Villa's trail, taking Enrriquez band governor of Chihuahua, will arrive in Juarez tomorrow to confer with Luis Cabrera, Carranza's minister of the treasury.

Troops Make Ready.

On the American side of the border the troops were prepared for marching orders. The El Paso and Southwestern Railroad, which runs along the very edge of the border, received government orders to hold all trains in readiness to be placed under military command.

The first detachment of the expedition may start in the vicinity of Juarez. Military commanders have thrown the utmost secrecy about the plans of the army. Likely as not the move will come unheralded and swift. Villa's spies are plentiful in El Paso. The El Paso authorities are keeping them under surveillance, and one or two, who have been too obviously active, are understood to be under detention.

Late tonight 2,000 Carranza troops were on the outskirts of Juarez having arrived from garrison towns in Carranza territory. Alarmists in El Paso took this as an indication that Carranza was ready to resent the American expedition if it attempted to cross the Rio Grande. But messengers brought word that the Carranzistas were brought to Juarez for the one purpose of protecting that city against a Villista attack.

To attack the big Mexican city right under the noses of the American troops would be a characteristic Villa move, and Carranza leaders do not care to let him succeed in such a melodramatic feat.

Forces Men to Join Him.

Villa, according to all information, is driving his forces with fear. The outlaw chief, it is understood, has surrounded himself with a fighting guard of men he can trust. With these he has forced men and boys to join his forces and take the pledge: "Death to all Americans."

In their march to Corralitos from the neighborhood of La Ascension, the Villa band was periscope close to a capture after its own heart—a trainload of 500 Americans. These were the members of a Mormon colony near Casas Grandes. For some time they have been waiting a chance to return to the United States.

To Preserve Peace You've Often Got To Biff a Fellow On the Nose, Says Baker

Washington has not yet become fully acquainted with the new Secretary of War. Mr. Baker landed here a few days ago right in the middle of the Mexican flare-up. He admitted that he was dazed over the war-like preparations that he found in progress in his new office. He smilingly told callers that for a time he would have to depend for guidance on such old stagers as Gen. Hugh L. Scott, the chief of staff.

Mr. Baker was preceded to Washington by a reputation as a "pacifist." He has numerous peace societies and has opposed preparedness. He is at the same time a fighting man, according to his friends.

"Sometimes, in order to preserve the peace, you've got to smash a man on the nose," he said to have told a friend who commented on the fact that Mr. Baker, a pacifist, had landed in the war office of the government.

They chose a time when their path would have crossed the trail of Villa. Learning of their peril, the railroad company had the train return to Casas Grandes.

Train travel along the border has assumed a real warlike aspect. The men of the border States have armed. Each train has an expectant passenger list with bulging hip-pockets.

Mexicans in El Paso are awaiting eagerly Carranza's reply to a message sent him today by Jose Isabel Robles. Robles is a former Mexican cabinet member and one-time Villa leader. He has often been asked to accept a commission in the constitutional army despite his former friendship for Villa. Robles sent word to Carranza that he would gladly lead a detachment of soldiers in pursuit of his former chief, whose haunts he knows by heart.
